The authors refer to procedures use by the International Commission On Stratigraphy (ICS) to explain their proposal to create a new set of solar system time units to be linked to chronostratigraphy and geochronology on Earth. This is an attempt to create common set of terms between Astronomy and Geology, and is to be encouraged. It is not easy for me to either be negative or positive about the proposal, since i cannot judge the scientific background and groundswell... leading to this set of new Era and Period names. I suggest to publish and see what happens in terms of use. I also suggest to have it read by
