

Interactive comment on “Reflection seismic studies over the end-glacial Burträsk fault, Skellefteå, Sweden” by C. Juhlin and B. Lund

C. Juhlin and B. Lund

christopher.juhlin@geo.uu.se

Received and published: 10 December 2010

We are now more specific in how we describe the faults.

"Page 318, line 11: see comment (line 9-10) above." We did not change the wording here since we say fracture or fault zone. We do not know if there is movement along the zone, but there could be today, even if there was no displacement along it as the ice receded.

The other minor corrections have been made.

Interactive comment on Solid Earth Discuss., 2, 307, 2010.