Interactive comment on "Permian plume beneath Tarim from receiver functions" by Lev Vinnik et al.

Dr Beghein (Editor)

cbeghein@epss.ucla.edu

A rigorous and objective scientific paper should discuss and/or test all possible hypotheses. If some hypotheses have been dismissed by others in previous papers, it does not mean that your own data are incompatible with these other hypotheses. If they are, it is still worth discussing in a sentence or two of sentences for completeness.

I strongly suggest you include a short discussion on this subject so that I can make a decision about this manuscript. Thank you.

Dr. Caroline Beghein, SE Topical Editor